02 · POSITIONING

How traders were leaning

Funding shows which side is paying to hold its position (positive = longs pay shorts). Open interest is how much money is in open bets; its change over the day shows money coming in or out. Long/short is how many accounts lean each way. Top L/S is the ratio among the largest traders. Taker B/S is the buy-to-sell ratio of market orders.

Funding, open interest and mark price are point-in-time (as of 00:00 UTC), not daily figures.

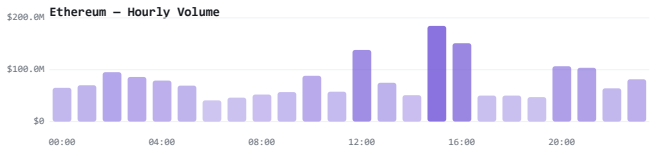

Bitcoin had 3.13 times more long positions than short ones (Binance), but the taker buy/sell ratio at 0.975 showed slightly more aggressive selling than buying. Ethereum's long/short ratio was even more bullish at 3.95:1, but with similar selling pressure (0.9851 ratio). Top traders on Bitcoin were 2.09:1 long—still strongly bullish but lighter than the broader market. Funding rates were modest—Bitcoin 5.76% annualized, Ethereum 4.99%—meaning longs were paying a small fee to hold. Open interest fell 0.35% on Bitcoin, signaling that institutional traders were closing positions or taking profits. Market breadth was deeply negative: only 26.6% of Binance perpetuals rose, while 73.4% fell. The Fear & Greed index hit 25, marking 'Extreme Fear,' down from 28 the day before, and total crypto market cap dropped 2.75%.

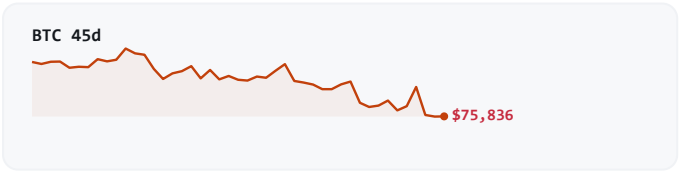

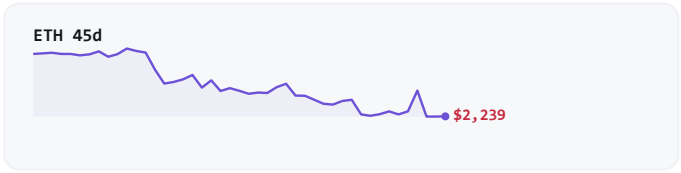

Funding Rate (annualised)

07 · GLOSSARY

CS Gorkem T
CS Tarik O

Every term used today, in plain words

Fear & Greed Index — A daily sentiment score from 0 (extreme fear) to 100 (extreme greed), based on volatility, market momentum, volume, social media activity, and survey data. Extreme fear (0–25) can signal oversold conditions; extreme greed (75–100) can signal overbought conditions.

Funding rate — A fee paid between traders in perpetual futures markets. When funding is positive, long-position holders pay short-position holders. High funding means longs are overly bullish and paying a premium; low or negative funding means shorts are overly bearish.

Long/short ratio — The number of long positions (bets price goes up) divided by the number of short positions (bets price goes down) at an exchange. A ratio above 1 means more traders are bullish; below 1 means more are bearish.

Mark price — The reference price used to calculate profit/loss on a perpetual futures position, designed to prevent manipulation and keep futures price close to spot. Differs from last traded price.

Market breadth — The percentage of all crypto assets that rose during a period, versus those that fell. High breadth (many coins up) signals healthy overall market. Low breadth (most coins down) signals broad weakness.

Open interest (OI) — The total number of unsettled perpetual futures contracts across all traders at an exchange. Rising OI means traders are adding new bets; falling OI means they are closing positions and reducing leverage.

Perpetual futures (perps) — Contracts that let traders bet on crypto price without a set expiry date, using leverage. Unlike spot markets, perps trade 24/7 and are settled between traders rather than with an exchange as counterparty.

Taker buy/sell ratio — The balance between aggressive buy orders (takers) and aggressive sell orders at an exchange. Above 1.0 means more buyers are in a hurry; below 1.0 means more sellers are in a hurry.

Top position ratio — The long/short ratio among the largest traders at an exchange, not all traders. Shows what the biggest players are betting and is watched as a contrarian signal for when retail sentiment lags institutional moves.
